Olympic red tape trips up visitors

GAMES Vancouver may have a laid-back reputation, but international groups have been stymied by rules thrown their way leading up to the Olympics.

Restaurant guidelines that say hamburgers can only be served well-done had one IOC member grouching "Why must Canada suck the flavour out?" And the Dutch almost ditched a program to bring 425 bicycles to Vancouver when they were told they couldn't leave any behind unless they paid the applicable taxes.

Decades of archival footage may have been lost in fire

TIM WIECLAWSKI

Ottawa's leading television newsroom and possibly decades of archival footage were destroyed in an early morning fire yesterday.

Fire crews were called to the CTV Ottawa building at 1500 Merivale Rd. at around 4:14 a.m. Upon arrival, the flames were shooting out of the second-floor windows.

The fire was under control by 5:30 a.m., but the entire building was burned through from one side to the other, said acting district chief Jim Cochrane.

The damage is estimated to be $2.5 million.

However, long-serving evening co-anchor Max Keeping said the potential loss of irreplaceable news archives is a larger concern.

His office, called "the museum" by CTV employees, contained 37 years of newscasts.

For the coming week, the CTV News crew will be sharing space with "A" in the Market Media Mall. Keeping said CTV stations in Montreal, Toronto and Saskatchewan, and the CBC, have offered to lend some equipment.

"Gone is the guts of the newsroom. Not gone is the heart of the news operation. That's the people," Keeping said yesterday looking at the charred remains of the building.

"It may not be as slick or as polished as viewers have come to expect, but within a couple of weeks, we should be back to normal."

Fireworks, human chain for Haiti kick off frosty fun at Winterlude

FESTIVAL Between new features and old favourites, Winterlude had a "picture-perfect" start this weekend. "We can truly say that the best of Canadian winters has converged in Canada's capital," said Guy Laflamme, vice-president of the Capital Experience, Communications and Marketing with the National Capital Commission.

The opening ceremonies on Friday night were a big success, with more than 25,000 people gathered at the Canadian Museum of Civilization and at Major's Hill Park and Jacques-Cartier Park for the first-ever Winterlude fireworks display, Laflamme said.

The Rogers Crystal Garden had "very sophisticated and very spectacular ice sculptures," said Laflamme. "Some brilliant masterpieces have been created in Confederation Park."

The Rideau Canal was also busy all weekend, with hundreds of people taking part in a human chain meant as a show of solidarity for the people of Haiti.

One of the best compliments Laflamme received was from a security officer at the opening ceremony. "He was a new Canadian from Lebanon," Laflamme said. "He said, 'I have never been so proud of being a Canadian.'"

Ex-NHLer takes swipe at disease

MENINGITIS Over his NHL career, he's played for the L.A. Kings, the Washington Capitals, the Boston Bruins, the Philadelphia Flyers, the Buffalo Sabres and the New York Islanders.

But the most nerve-racking moment of Garry Galley's life was when his son, Blake, was taken to hospital with symptoms of meningitis.

One night, the five-year-old complained of a stiff neck and showed flu-like symptoms. Doctors at the Children's Hospital of Eastern Ontario said he showed symptoms of meningitis.

Test results came back negative, but "the scare was there," Galley said.

Now nine years old, Blake plays minor Atom A hockey, and Galley, a Nepean resident, will do anything he can to raise awareness of the disease that so nearly touched his family.

Galley and Dr. Gary Garber, head of infectious diseases at the Ottawa Hospital and professor of medicine at uOttawa, were on hand to raise awareness about meningitis protection at the Take a Shot for Meningitis Awareness event at yesterday's Ottawa 67's game at Lansdowne Park.

Meningococcal meningitis is a bacterial infection that can be spread through close contact involving secretions from the nose or throat, such as sharing water bottles and kissing.

All Grade 7 students in Ontario receive the Menactra vaccine that will protect them from four of the five strains of meningococcal meningitis.

Prevention is easier than treatment, said Galley, and it can be as simple as using your own water bottles, which he autographed and gave out to fans yesterday.

Each week, an average of four Canadians are infected. The disease tends to strike children, teenagers and young adults more, said Garber. It also tends to be more prevalent where there are more people, like university dorms.

Each year, Ottawa sees about five or six cases of meningococcal meningitis, half of which are serious, said Garber.

SUSPENSION City police have charged an Ottawa police officer with three counts of criminal harassment and one count of breach of recognizance for incidents that occurred between Nov. 1, 2009 and Feb. 5.

The officer has been suspended with strict conditions pending the outcome of the criminal charges and released on a recognizance with conditions after appearing in court yesterday.

Police are not releasing the name of the officer in order to protect the victim's privacy.

Councillor wants third party on study

LANSDOWNE A city councillor wants to bring in a third-party consultant to review a Lansdowne Park transportation study conducted by a firm that also worked for a group hoping to redevelop the park.

Today, the city's transportation and transit committees will meet to discuss the Lansdowne Transportation Study.

City staff are recommending the city hire engineering consulting firms Delcan Corporation and McCormick Rankin Corporation to conduct the study, and then develop a transportation demand management plan.

However, since Delcan was hired to develop a transportation strategy for the city and the Ottawa Sports and Entertainment Group, the company would appear to be in conflict of interest by conducting a transportation impact study for the city now.

To alleviate fears of a conflict of interest, River Ward councillor and chair of today's meeting Maria McRae is suggesting the city set aside $20,000 to hire a third party to conduct an independent peer review of the study.

"We want to make sure we get it right," said McRae.

NCC goes viral with Olympic support video

TRACEY TONG

With only days to go until festivities begin in Vancouver, city residents and members of local sports clubs showed their colours yesterday to demonstrate support for Canada's Olympians.

Dressed in red, more than 100 people, including members of the Ottawa Valley Curling Association, Ottawa Pacers and Gloucester Concorde speedskating clubs, and uOttawa students converged at Dow's Lake to help the National Capital Commission create a video dedicated to Canada's Olympic athletes.

The video of the event, which will be released through sites like YouTube, Facebook and Twitter, as well as the NCC website this week, marks the first time the NCC will have used viral operations to show support for Canadian athletes.

"It's a great way to show our support to Canadian athletes and celebrate this great event for our country," said Guy Laflamme, vice-president of the Capital Experience, Communications and Marketing with the National Capital Commission.

He expects the video to travel quickly.

"That's the magic of viral marketing. In a matter of a few hours, you can have exponential reach across not only the country, but around the world. As far as we know, there aren't too many of these initiatives, so hopefully this will stimulate other initiatives across the country."

"I think it's a great idea," said participant Mike Gall. "Being the capital of Canada, it's good to show our pride."

There will be two more opportunities to take part in similar events during the Olympics.

On the last weekend of Winterlude, there will be an event in Dow's Lake, to cheer for Canada's speedskaters.

"When the speedskaters are on the start line, they will have heard of thousands of people in the capital cheering for them," Laflamme said.

Dressed in red, more than 100 people gathered at Dow's Lake to show support for Canada's Olympic athletes yesterday.

Earthquake survivors rally demanding food in the streets of Port-au-Prince, Haiti yesterday. Many aid organizations are using a percentage of donations for Haiti to cover administrative costs.

Haiti donations don't all go to Haiti

AID As Canadians continue to donate tens of millions of dollars to relief efforts in Haiti, aid organizations are scrambling to ensure as much money as possible finds its way into the devastated country.

With the federal government's window to match donations set to close Friday, charities and NGOs are hoping the incentive will give one final push to their fundraising campaigns.

But administrative costs, logistical challenges and in a few cases shady book-keeping mean some donations are more likely than others to end up helping survivors of last month's earthquake.

A survey of several leading aid organizations in Canada revealed that while some guarantee every dollar of every donation will be sent to the country, many take a percentage in order to process the funds. The percentages vary between two and 10 per cent and are aimed at covering such expenditures as advertising, manning call centres and maintaining website servers.

Praising squeaky wheels

InTransit

Steve Collins

metronews.ca/intransit

When we say "the squeaky wheel gets the grease," there is an implicit disapproval of complaint and complainers, but also recognition that complaining works.

It didn't look good for Ottawa transit users before last month's budget vote, as we faced an unholy trifecta of fare increases, service reductions and further delay on student U-passes, all in the name of keeping a lid on tax rates.

In the end, the cuts were abandoned and a pilot program started for the student passes, leaving us only with yet another jacking of the fares. Two out of three isn't bad, and we have the squeaky wheels to thank.

The route cuts, which would have affected dozens of bus routes, also proposed to combine already overcrowded express runs for commuters. It was an inelegant attempt to save $3 million, and completely at odds with Transpo's goal of someday convincing 30 per cent of commuters to ride public transit. It's currently about 20 per cent.

What are they supposed to ride, after all, if we keep removing buses?

Commuters and other bus riders came out to meetings to squeak en masse, and city councilors, ears ringing from the ruckus, voted down the service cuts.

Similarly, it took years of concerted squeaking, but the city is now prepared to offer passes to full-time students at Carleton University and the University of Ottawa for $145 a semester instead of $242.

Students are unlikely to see the price of any of their other expenses drop 40 per cent any time soon! Of course, there's a catch, as the cost of the pass is to be added to everyone's student fees, whether they use it or not. So the squeaking is far from over as the plan now goes to student voters for approval. Acceptance of the

"Every time the price goes up, it hits poorer passengers where it hurts, and Transpo's fares are already among the highest in Canada ... This seems a curious strategy for boosting ridership."

U-pass would see Ottawa students finally catch up to those in such pampered metropolises as Peterborough.

On the price hikes, there was less vocal opposition, more grumbling than squeaking, as we learned fares will go up 7.5 per cent March 1.

There seems to be grudging acceptance of the city's drive to have fares carry half the cost of operating our transit system.

There are limits, however, to how much riders will tolerate. Every time the price goes up, it hits poorer passengers where it hurts, and Transpo's fares are already among the highest in Canada. They last rose in July. This seems a curious strategy for boosting ridership.

There comes a point at which we must squeak up. These are our wheels, after all, and our grease.

Canadians expect big bill for upcoming Games: Poll

VANCOUVER

2010 Games

Most Canadians believe the Vancouver Olympic and Paralympic Games will finish in the red, according to a new Canadian Press Harris-Decima poll.

In a survey conducted last month, 84 per cent of those polled indicated the Games, which begin Friday, will go over budget.

Just three per cent felt the Games would come in under budget and six per cent said they would break even.

"That was a pretty consistent view in all walks of life, in all parts of the country," said Harris-Decima senior vice-president Doug Anderson.

"It doesn't matter where you come from, what age you are, there are very few people who buy into the notion that this is going to be on budget, let alone under budget."

The telephone survey of 1,000 Canadians was conducted Jan. 21-24 and has a margin of error of 3.1 per cent, 19 times out of 20.

Anderson said skepticism about the Games budget could be due to many things but it's probably anchored by persistent memories of the massive cost overruns for the 1976 Summer Olympics in Montreal.

The entire Games ran in the red despite assurances from then-mayor Jean Drapeau that they could not lose money any more than a man could have a baby.

The city finally paid off the debt on the Olympic stadium — the most onerous symbol of the problems that plagued the Games — in 2006. The 1988 Calgary Winter Olympics actually turned a profit.

Vancouver Olympic organizers say they have not spent more than budgeted for venues, although the city of Richmond laid out tens of millions more to upgrade the speedskating facility and the city of Vancouver.

Plagiarizing poetry is the key to her heart

HineSight

Anne Hines

metronews.ca/hinesight

With Feb. 14 fast approaching, today I provide support for readers who fall into the category known as, "special-occasion challenged" or, alternatively, "men."

True, not all men are special-occasion challenged. To find out if you are, answer this simple question.

To me, Valentine's Day is:
a) A magical 24 hours when I can shower my partner with the love and appreciation she deserves.

b) What?
If you choose b), help is at hand.

First, remember that your goal on Valentine's Day is to show your partner that you've thought about her.

And not only when you wondered who you could get to make snacks for poker night.

A classic way to do this is by creating something personal and artistic.

For "artistic," it's best to stick to poetry. Interpretive dance does not usually work so well except to give her something to share with her friends on YouTube.

Many men, when confronted with the exciting challenge of writing poetry respond, "Can't I just chew off my arm instead?"

No. That kind of thing is hardly ever romantic. What you want is to give her something meaningful and heartfelt that expresses your love in terms only you could use. To achieve this, you simply have to steal it from someone else.

Stealing poetry is entirely OK. There's an old saying, "Imitation is the sincerest form of flattery ... except if you're making knock-off handbags or watches, in which case it's illegal."

An important tip: The best poems to steal are ones that don't contain the words "booty" or "hot" or that you didn't get off either a washroom stall door or a site for Metallica lyrics.

Here are two suggestions: "Love is not love that alters when its alteration finds, nor bends with the remover to remove."

This is perfect for the woman you'd describe as "has never, ever read Shakespeare, so won't know I stole this."

So, this Valentine's Day gentlemen, remember this. Plagiarize a little poetry, and you'll steal your way into her heart.

Anne Hines is an author and humour writer. She has written three novels and one collection of nonfiction humour.

Deadly blast at power plant

U.S. An explosion blew apart a power plant under construction in Middletown, Conn., as workers purged natural gas lines yesterday, killing at least five people and injuring a dozen or more in a blast that shook homes for miles, officials said.

Middletown Mayor Sebastian Giuliano said at a late-afternoon news conference that at least 12 people were injured.

Deputy Fire Marshal Al Santostefano told The Associated Press yesterday evening that crews were still searching for survivors in the rubble at the Kleen Energy Systems plant in Middletown, about 32 kilometres south of Hartford.

Santostefano earlier said about 50 people were in the area yesterday morning when the explosion occurred. The mayor said at the news conference it was difficult to tell how many people were at the plant because multiple contractors were working on it with their own employee lists.

"They're trying to figure out who was on the job today, and where are they now?" Giuliano said.

The 620-megawatt plant was being built to produce energy primarily using natural gas. Santostefano said workers for the construction company, O&G Industries, were purging the gas lines, a procedure he called a "blow-down," when the explosion occurred.

Parts of Virginia, Maryland and West Virginia got closer to three feet. Many roads reopened but officials continued to warn residents that highways could be icy and treacherous. The snow snapped tree limbs onto power lines and several roofs collapsed under the weight. In Washington, it was unclear if the roads would be clear enough for workers to get in today.

The U.S. military has not given a start date for the operation to clear insurgents from the Helmand province town of Marjah, the biggest community in the south under insurgent control. But the military has said fighting will start soon, and many residents weren't taking chances.

American aircraft dropped leaflets over Marjah yesterday, warning people of the coming offensive, and the U.S. fired illu-

Villagers said the leaflets were aimed primarily at the militants, listing several of their commanders by name and warning fighters to leave the area or be killed.

U.S. Gen. Stanley McChrystal, the top NATO commander in Afghanistan, said the success of the operation depends on convincing civilians that the government will improve services once the militants are gone.

The offensive in Marjah

— a farming community and major opium-production centre with a population of 80,000 — will be the first since U.S. President Barack Obama announced he was sending 30,000 additional troops. U.S. officials have long telegraphed their intention to seize Marjah.

Ghulam Farooq Noorzai, the head of the provincial refugee department, estimated that 90 to 100 families with an average of six members each, had left the Marjah area because of concerns about the operation.

Reflecting the danger, a bomb detonated by remote control struck an Afghan patrol in Kandahar yesterday, killing three policemen.

Two Swedish soldiers and a locally hired interpreter were killed by small arms fire near Mazar-e-Sharif in northern Afghanistan.

TSX could feel more selling heat this week

MARKET The Toronto stock market could see more selling pressure this week as investors weigh whether the most recent U.S. employment data will lead to a sustained economic recovery.

Worries about whether some European countries can get huge deficits under control has further discouraged stock buyers and the question now is how far markets will retrace after almost a year of steady gains. The Toronto market ended a four-week long losing streak last week, advancing 1.6 per cent. But the TSX is down about 4.5 per cent since the beginning of the year as U.S. President Barack Obama announced plans to curb risky trading by U.S. banks and China raised the reserve requirements for banks to slow lending and cool a hot economy. "Indicative of the employment report and ... companies that were beating expectations on earnings, but missing on guidance, is this whole idea that we need to still readjust our expectations for 2010 down a little bit," said Colin Cieszynski, market analyst at CMC Markets Canada.

Toyota, the world's biggest automaker, announced yesterday it plans to deal with a braking problem on its prized Prius hybrid.

Prius fix likely next

TOKYO Toyota said yesterday it will soon announce plans to deal with braking problems in its prized Prius hybrid amid reports it has decided to issue a recall for the vehicle in Japan, a possible new embarrassment for the world's biggest automaker. Toyota Motor Corp. has already had to recall more than seven million other cars in North America, Europe and China over a sticky accelerator and floor mats that can get caught in the gas pedal. Those problems and criticism of Toyota's response to them have sullied the stellar reputation for quality long enjoyed by one of Japan's corporate icons.

Separately, the company has told U.S. dealers it is preparing to repair the brakes on thousands of Prius vehicles there, according to an email sent by a company executive. It was unclear whether Toyota planned a formal U.S. recall. Prius drivers in Japan and the U.S. have complained of a short delay before the brakes kick in — a flaw Toyota says can be fixed with a software programming change. The lag occurs as the car is switching between brakes for the gas engine and the electric motor.

Toyota feels resale dent

Toyota's wilting reputation is beginning to affect the resale value of its vehicles, with one used-auto pricing service cutting its valuations by $200 US to $500, depending on the model.

Kelley Blue Book, the U.S.-based company that helps consumers determine how much their used vehicles are worth, says it has lowered the resale value for the Toyota vehicles involved in the company's massive January recall by one to two per cent.

The affected models include the popular Camry, Corolla and RAV4.

The recall created a unique set of circumstances for KBB, but the devaluation ultimately came down to the fundamentals of demand and supply, said Juan Flores, director of vehicle valuations at KBB.

Toyota recalled 270,000 vehicles in Canada and millions more in the U.S., Europe and Asia due to reports of a defective pedal that can stick and take longer than usual to return to the idle position. This will likely impact demand for used Toyotas, particularly given that the problem has been linked to wear and tear on older vehicles.

In a survey on KBB's website, 20 per cent of people who were intending to buy a Toyota before the recall are no longer considering the brand, Flores said.

On top of weaker demand, the Japanese automaker briefly halted sales and production of the affected vehicles until it found a fix for the pedal problem.

"As the dealers are having to hold onto their inventory of vehicles and as the manufacturing plants have halted production, this is really building up supply inventory," Flores said.

Brees' Saints breeze to first title

New Orleans quarterback named MVP after tying Super Bowl record

SUPER BOWL RESULTS

Colts 17 Saints 31

Put away those paper bags forever. Drew Brees and the Saints are NFL champions, rallying to beat Peyton Manning and the Indianapolis Colts 31-17 last night in one of pro football's most thrilling title games.

Brees tied a Super Bowl record with 32 completions, the last a two-yard slant to Jeremy Shockey for the winning points with 5:42 remaining. The Pro Bowl quarterback was chosen Super Bowl MVP.

New Orleans' lowly ranked defence made several key stops, an onside kick sparked their second-half comeback, and Tracy Porter's 74-yard interception return on a pass from Manning, of all people, clinched it.

Manning gave chase, but fell awkwardly as the cornerback raced by. The four-time NFL MVP forlornly walked to the sideline as the Big Easy celebrations began. Who would have thought the biggest mistake of the game would have come from Manning?

An NFL embarrassment for much of their 43 years, the Saints' football renaissance, led by Brees and coach Sean Payton, climaxed with Shockey's touchdown and Lance Moore's two-point conversion catch. The conversion pass originally was ruled incomplete, but Payton challenged the call and won.

Porter's pick, just as dramatic as his interception of Brett Favre's pass to force overtime in the NFC title game, was the game's only turnover. It's one Manning will forever regret.

The Saints (16-3) won three post-season games this winter after winning only two in the previous 42 years. They beat Arizona, Minnesota and Indianapolis (16-3) — all division winners — for their first title, scoring 107 points and allowing only 59.

The championship came four years after Hurricane Katrina ravaged New Orleans, making the Saints nomads for the 2005 season. There even was some doubt they would return, but the NFL refused to abandon the Big Easy. The Superdome was rebuilt and the Saints won the NFC South in '06, their first season with Brees and Payton.

That was the season Manning won his only Super Bowl. He had the Colts in front for much of this one, but New Orleans' league-leading offence, which scored 510 points this season, outscored Indy 31-7 after falling behind 10-0.

Jones topples P.E.I. to capture third straight Scotties title

CURLING Make it three straight for Jennifer Jones at the Scotties Tournament of Hearts.

Jones and Team Canada beat Prince Edward Island's Kathy O'Rourke 8-7 in 11 ends yesterday to win the title.

Jones scored one in the 11th to give her rink a fourth Scotties title overall.

"I never thought we would do it," Jones said. "To win three is incredible. The way we won today, the way we came back was awesome."

P.E.I. held a 6-3 lead heading into the seventh end before Team Canada battled back to take a 7-6 lead.

We made big shots when we had to so we wanted to hang in there and make the shots to win. It just worked out well for us."

Jones stole a pair in the ninth end to take a 7-6 lead but P.E.I. scored one in the 10th end to force extra ends.

"Certainly we would have liked to make history and finish that off but we gave it our best and it just turned out to be a couple inches short today," said O'Rourke.

O'Rourke wouldn't go as far as to say that inexperience played a role in the loss.

"We missed the draw against the two (in the ninth end)," she said. "The girls got fooled a little bit on the sweep and it got to the fudge part faster than we thought. The weight was perfect and we weren't really sweeping that hard. All of a sudden it got to the centre line and it just stopped. I don't think it was nerves at all. That's what happens sometimes."

O'Rourke added that against top-notch competition like Team Canada, no lead was completely safe but the two teams stacked up well against each other.

"I don't know if I see much difference (between the two teams). We knew when we got up with the lead that it would never be enough against a good team like Jones' team," said O'Rourke. "I knew they would keep coming at us and keep fighting hard because that's what a really good team does."

Jones spoke highly of P.E.I.'s Erin Carmody, who threw skip rock for P.E.I. for the tournament.

"She played great," Jones said of the 21-year-old. "She's got a great future ahead of her. I'm sure we'll see them again. It was a great game today and it was a ton of fun to play and I'm sure they'll be back."

Jones became just the third skip to win the tournament three straight times — Colleen Jones and Vera Pezer were the others. Colleen Jones is the only skip to have won the tournament four straight times.

The face of the Games?

Big things expected from U.S. superstar skier Lindsey Vonn

Maybe the only thing more brilliant than Lindsey Vonn's skiing is her personality.

The woman who can be ruthless in winning World Cup events is intelligent, articulate and photogenic at the finish line. Combine Vonn's persona with her potential to win three or more gold medals and she easily could become the international face of the Vancouver Winter Olympics.

Think Michael Phelps in a parka. Get ready for the "Vonncover Games."

"Lindsey Vonn is the one athlete I can think of that would be a face of the Games not only in North America, but in Europe and the Far East," says veteran broadcaster Brian Williams,

"I am skiing really well right now, but anything can happen on race day."

Lindsey Vonn

who will cover his 13th Olympics. "She is so well known in Europe and so dominant in women's skiing."

Vonn, of Vail, Colo., has won nine World Cup races this season in downhill, super-giant slalom and the combined event. The 25-year-old is also the two-time defending overall World Cup champion.

Crowning an American queen of the ski hill would boost NBC's television ratings much like Phelps' swimming did during the last Summer Games when his eight gold medals made him king of the pool.

NBC has already made Vonn the centre of its marketing campaign for the Games. The network helped sponsor a contest for people to design the artwork on her Olympic race helmet.

Vonn seems content to play along with the hype, but understands the nature of ski racing.

"I haven't given any thought to even the possibility of winning more than one medal at the Olympics because it is going to be really tough," she said during a recent conference call.

"Nothing is guaranteed in ski racing. I am skiing really well right now, but anything can happen on race day. All I am doing is preparing myself the best I can. I hope all the pieces come together for race day."

Circumstances could conspire to make another athlete the face of the Games.

Defending his Olympic gold medal in halfpipe would further fuel the marketing machine around American snowboarder Shaun White. The world could fall under the charm of South Korean figure skater Kim Yu-Na should she win the women's figure skating.

The secret to the job hunt: Talk

MAT LECOMPTE
for Metro Canada

There are jobs out there. What may come as a surprise is that they may not be listed on websites like Workopolis, Hotjobs, Craigslist or company web sites.

According to networking and job search guru Molly Wendell, the key to finding a job is all about getting out there, meeting people and having good conversations. In fact, she says most employers don't even care about what's on your resume; they're more concerned with who you are what you can do in the future, as opposed to what you've done in the past.

"I was unemployed for two years and three days. After a year and a half, I knew I was doing something completely wrong," Wendell told Metro. "So I turned off my computer and got out and had interesting conversations with people within the industry I wanted to work."

Over the next 90 days, Wendell had 30 interviews. By abandoning her web-based approach to finding employment, she found all kinds of opportunities and got offers that weren't even listed.

"To get a job, you actually have to do something," she says. "Put on your game face and get things done."

She says one of the keys to starting your job search is to focus on what you want to do for a living and what you want out of life. "To be specific, is terrific. To be vague is the plague," she says, quoting a grade school teacher.

Next, find people in the industry you're interested in to talking to. And cast a wide net, because, she says,

According to Molly Wendell, who had 30 interviews in 90 days, networking is the best way to get a job in today's market.

the people who know you least will often offer the best help.

For those with small networks or those who are relatively shy, she says you've got nothing to worry about. The key to networking, you see, is all about asking the right questions and engaging your company, she says. If you want to be a good networker, you must be a good listener.

"Say, 'Hey, I need your help. I want to learn and talk,'" she says. "No one wants to listen to 'me, me, me' all the time."

It's important to keep in mind that interviews, much like conversations, are a two-way street. Meaning you want to do your best to get as much information that you can to ensure it's an opportunity you'd like to pursue.

The guardian of the Olympic torch

OddJobs

Diane Peters

Metronews.ca/oddjobs

The Lowdown

Job title: Torch escort.

Salary: Part of his job as a police officer.

Education/training: Must be a trained officer and must be a runner.

Best Part of the Job: "Having the opportunity to see how truly beautiful this country is and experiencing the people at the same time."

Worst Part of the Job: "Being short on sleep."

This winter, thousands of lucky Canadians have had the honour of carrying the Olympic torch for a kilometre or two.

But Jeff Simpkins has travelled with the flame for thousands of kilometres across Canada and back.

As one of just five torch escorts working the entire relay, this police officer knows how lucky he is. "It's pretty amazing. It's neat to see Canada this way."

Simpkins, 48, is from Belleville, Ont., and thought about joining the police force as a young man. He studied chemistry and worked in research for a few years. Then, about 23 years ago, he walked into a police station in his hometown and applied. "I walked in in October, and started in March. And I've never looked back since."

Working for the Ontario Provincial Police, Simpkins has been stationed across the province, and has been based in Orillia since 2001. He currently works with the Aboriginal Policing Bureau.

On his own time, Simpkins is a runner. He began long distance running when he was in grade 10 and also has never looked back. He does ultramarathons now: Races that go for 50 kilometres or more.

"Most people know me as a bit of a running freak," says Simpkins.

That's why one of his senior officers ask him, many months ago, if he would work with the RCMP to escort the flame across Ontario. He accepted, and while doing a training camp for the job, filled out a form that asked if he'd be interested in acting as a commander for the entire run. "I, like most people, said yes, thinking it wasn't going to happen."

A week after he got home, he got an email telling him he'd been selected.

He started his job on Oct. 30 in Victoria. His days begin as early as 4:15 a.m..

Simpkins and his team are primarily responsible for the safety of the flame and the bearers. His work varies between running alongside the torch (he can cover as much as 45 km a day), assisting torchbearers, dealing with small tasks that need to be done and riding in the convoy as it drives to the next town.

Days end around 7 p.m. By the time he eats dinner and spends an hour or so planning the schedule for the next day, it's time for bed by 11 or 12.

He gets little rest and just a few days off here and there, but he's not exhausted. He knows his last day of work is Feb 12, and then he flies home the next day. "Then it's back to normal work."

Diane Peters once hawked magic pens at the Canadian National Exhibition. She's now a writer and part-time journalism instructor.

Going for the gold

Warm up for Olympics with tear-jerkers, against-all-odds films

VANCOUVER

2010 Games

With the Winter Olympics just days away, put yourself in the mood with a few movies documenting the thrill of the medal chase. Here's a look at cinema's take on the biggest event in sports.

BLADES OF GLORY Slapstick comedy meets pairs skating in this ludicrous 2007 farce from Will Ferrell and Jon Heder about rival skaters who team up to compete in the World Winter Sport Games. Ferrell plays the cocky Chazz Michael Michaels, while Heder is his one-time adversary Jimmy MacElroy. When their on-ice animosity goes too far they are banned from singles competition and take desperate measures to reclaim skating glory.

CHARIOTS OF FIRE Perhaps the most critically acclaimed of all Olympics-themed films, this 1981 tale about two runners prepping for the 1924 Games was nominated for seven Academy Awards, nabbing the prize for best picture. It's impossible to hear the famous theme song by Vangelis without catching the Olympic spirit.

COOL RUNNINGS A perfect prelude to the Vancouver Games, this 1993 gem looks at the plucky Jamaican bobsled team that charmed fans during the Calgary Olympics in 1988. Includes a standout performance by the late John Candy as Irv Blitzer, the down-on-his-luck bookie who agrees to coach the team.

CUTTING EDGE Another story that echoes the '88 Games, Cutting Edge opens with American hockey player Doug Dorsey (D.B. Sweeney) taking a brutal hit during a game against West Germany. Long before Battle of the Blades made it cool for hockey players to figure skate, Dorsey reinvents himself as one-half of a figure-skating pair with the imperious Kate Moseley (Moir Kelly).

MIRACLE This flag-waving

2004 crowd-pleaser traces the unlikely triumph of a ramshackle U.S. hockey team over the intimidating Soviet squad at the 1980 Winter Games in Lake Placid, N.Y. Kurt Russell earned critics' praise for his portrayal of no-nonsense coach Herb Brooks, while the young athletes who portray the team hit the rink with an authenticity rarely seen on the big screen.

PERSONAL BEST Running and romance mingle in this 1982 drama, better known for its risqué lesbian storyline than its account of female athletics despite strong critical praise at the time. Mariel Hemingway and real-life track star Patrice Donnelly star as two highly competitive athletes training for the 1976 Montreal Games. The pair begin a romantic relationship but, with each angling for a spot on the Olympic team, it's not long before their trust is tested.

PREFONTAINE The tragic struggle of middle-distance runner Steve Prefontaine is laid bare in this 1997 retelling, which stars Jared Leto of My So-Called Life.

The record-setting athlete makes it to the 1972 Munich Olympics, but a terrorist attack kills several athletes and leaves him shaken. He returns to the United States without a medal and becomes an outspoken advocate for amateur athletes. While training for the 1976 Summer Olympics in Montreal, he dies in a car accident at the age of 24.

Rice hones in on religion

Angel Time

Author: Anne Rice
Publisher: Knopf Canada
Price: $35 (Hardcover)

THE OPENING installment in Anne Rice's Songs of the Seraphim series drives the stake in the vampire niche she's known for, honing in on religion. As a lethal under-ground assassin, Toby O'Dare's vocation is a far cry from the calling he once heard to join the priesthood. When he's visited by angel Malchiah, Toby's chance to absolve his sins is realized. Malchiah takes Toby back to 13th century England to embody a friar. Attempting to reacquaint himself with his spiritual core, Toby watches over a Jewish couple, whom gentiles believe killed their daughter over her decision to convert to Christianity.

The To-Do List

Author: Mike Gayle
Publisher: Hodder
Price: $16.99 (Hardcover)

IT'S DIFFICULT enough to stroke off a few items on your to-do list, let alone complete the whole thing. But British author Mike Gayle took the task in-dex to another level, aiming to fulfill a massive 1,277-item to-do list in one year. Increasingly conscious of his immaturity, when the married man in his mid-30s anticipated his second child, he decided to do some growing up and use the to-do list to do it. His comical memoir tracks Gayle's struggle through day 365, from "Eat more salad," to buying his wife "underwear from Agent Provocateur."

Princess Noire

Author: Nadine Cohodas
Publisher: Pantheon
Price: $37 (Hardcover)

NADINE COHODAS continues her exploration of 1950s blues and R&B culture, following books on Chess Records and Dinah Washington, with Princess Noire: The Tumultuous Reign of Nina Simone. Cohodas compiles a detailed biography of the Queen of the Blues, tracing her early life and musical rejection, through her eventual breakthrough and the internal trials she struggled with along the way. More than just a passionate vibrato, Simone's voice was also active in the civil rights movement, which Cohodas examines in contrast to her upbringing. Princess Noire commemorates both the public and private spheres of the musical legend's life.

etalk's Lainey Lui dishes out celeb dirt in three's

Three Talk

COURTNEY LOVE. Courtney Love frequently lays out her life on Facebook and Twitter, posting incoherent ramblings that read like a psychedelic online journal. While most of her scandal-ridden life has been embarrassingly and dramatically public — she recently lost custody of her daughter Frances Bean — here are three things you might not know about Love:

ONE She auditioned for the Mickey Mouse Club when she was 12 years old. Not surprisingly, she was not called back after reading a poem by Sylvia Plath.

TWO Love dated Edward Norton for four years, her longest relationship, after dumping Gavin Rossdale. She claims Rossdale sent her a diamond ring that she ended up throwing into the Mississippi River, an act that she suggests eventually freed him for Gwen Stefani.

THREE She desperately wanted to play Satine in Moulin Rouge, a role that was written for Nicole Kidman. Love bitterly berated Kidman in an elevator following the release of the film, arguing that she could have performed it much better.

Lainey Lui is a reporter for etalk and runs the popular gossip site, LaineyGossip.com. As part of CTV's Olympic Broadcast Team, Lainey is on the ground in Whistler reporting on entertainment news from the Vancouver 2010 Olympic Winter Games.

A big birthday Butler

MAKES FOR A VERY HAPPY BIRTHDAY GIRL Jennifer Aniston headed to one of her favourite getaway spots, Los Cabos, Mexico, on the weekend where the actress got a jump start celebrating her 41st birthday — Aniston's big day is actually this Thursday — with a group of friends, people.com reports.

But this year, she had a surprise birthday guest, Gerard Butler, her costar in the upcoming comedy, The Bounty Hunter. Last month, the two were spotted laughing and spending a lot of time together at the Golden Globes.

Aniston flew a large group of pals including Butler, Courteney Cox, her husband David Arquette and Sheryl Crow, whose birthday is also Feb. 11, to the One & Only Palmilla resort Thursday evening.

Flippant about flipping

I CALL HEADS. NO, TAILS.

NO, HEADS! When it comes to divorce settlements, Kate Walsh is a real innovator, us-magazine.com reports. Following a reportedly tough round of negotiations, a judge ruled Friday that Walsh and her ex-husband

Alex Young will divide some of their shared assets with — literally — a coin toss.

As reported at E! News, court papers say that some of the former couple's belongings will "be divided by alternating picks after the flip of a coin to determine who will pick first."

In the rest of the divorce settlement announced Friday, Young will receive $627,000 US from the Private Practice star, and half of her pay between the start of her Sept. 2007 marriage through their November 2008 separation.

Creepily crushing on Keira

BUT HE JUST WANTS TO LOOK AT YOU ... AND LOOK ... AND LOOK. IS THAT TOO MUCH TO ASK? Keira Knightley felt "threatened" by a man arrested on suspicion of stalking her, femalefirst.co.uk reports.

The British actress called police last Thursday after she was constantly bothered by 41-year-old Mariek Daniluk, who would regularly turn up at the theatre to see her.

A source told The Sun newspaper: "He did not make any specific threats to her but she was concerned enough to call the police." Police have confirmed the man was arrested outside the theatre over harassment allegations.

No little gold man for her

SHE JUST KNOWS THESE THINGS Sandra Bullock has news for anyone waiting to see her give an acceptance speech at the Academy Awards — don't hold your breath, people.com reports.

"I'm so not winning an Oscar," Bullock, who received her first-ever nomination, as best actress for The Blind Side, told reporters at the Santa Barbara International Film Festival, where she received the American Riviera Award for her influence on film.

"Nine times out of 10 I always pick who's going to win," the actress, 45, said. "And I already know who's going to win. I'm not going to say, but nine times out of 10, I'm right."

Kristen's big day in court

MAKING TROUBLE An otherwise normal run of jury duty for Kristen Stewart may end up causing one security guard his job. The Twilight star served on a three-day trial in Los Angeles last week and on her last day agreed to pose for a photo with a security guard, according to E! Online. The man reportedly allowed a friend's wife to post the photo on Facebook, and now they both may be in hot water.

"Right now my husband and the security guard are in trouble for (the picture) having gone up," the man's wife reportedly posted online after removing the photo. "It is confidential when celebrities are in court."

AS IN, SHE WANTS HERS Jessica Alba is usually flattered by compliments on her looks, but this may be taking things too far. A Chinese woman is reportedly planning a plastic surgery makeover to look more like the Valentine's Day actress in hopes of winning back her lover, according to the Associated Press. Alba admits she finds it distressing.

"I think you should never have to change yourself like that," the actress says. "If somebody loves you, they'll love you no matter what."
